Records Obtained in Flight to Altitude of More Than 12 Miles Ruined

MOSCOW, Jan. 31. — (UP) — Three daring Soviet balloonists, who ascended higher into the upper atmosphere than man had ever risen before, were found dead today at the end of their adventure.

The gondola of their stratosphere balloon became detached.

Through the night the balloon, which had established a world's altitude record of 67,568 feet (12.79 miles), was sought by radio, searchlight and high-powered field glasses, but without result.

At 4 a. m. today (9 p. m. EST) authorities began a systematic search of territory within a radius of 150-miles of Moscow. At that time the balloon, with its crew of three commanded by Paul Fedorenko, had not been heard from in 13 hours.

The last radio communication with the aeronauts, including Andrew Vasenko, engineer who constructed the gondola of the Syrius, and Ilya Usliskin, brilliant young scientist who was making physical observations, came at 3:10 p. m. yesterday.

At that time, the balloon was hovering over Kolomna, and was descending.

Breaks Record

The balloon, which ascended at 9:15 a. m. and reached a height of 12,3-4 miles within three hours, fell between 3:30 and 5 p. m. yesterday near the village of Potiliski Ostrog, east of Moscow.

Witnesses reported two explosions as the gondola hit the earth with terrific force.

The impact was so great that the bodies of the men were mutilated and the instruments ruined, so that their gallant achievement probably will be without scientific result, unless written observations are found intact.

An official commission left for the scene to conduct an investigation.

TWELVE MEN NAMED ON WOMAN'S JURY

GREENWOOD, Miss., Jan. 31. — (UP) — A tentative jury was seated in the box today for Dr. Sara Ruth Dean's poison whisky murder trial.

Twelve men were accepted by the state and the court.

District Attorney Arthur Jordan was expected to call the first witness today in the trial of the 33-year-old woman specialist charged with poisoning a farewell drink she gave to Dr. John P. Kennedy, 41, her former business associate, in pretense of wishing him well in remarrying to his divorced wife.

The state planned to portray Dr. Dean as a "woman scorned," who smilingly gave Dr. Kennedy a deadly highball and drank to his future.

WOOD FOUR STROKES AHEAD AT CALIENTE

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Jan. 31. — (UP) — Craig Wood of Deale, N. J., big money winner in western winter golf last year, today set a new record for this course with a 67, four under par, to take a big lead over the early field in the annual $7500 Agua Caliente golf tournament.

Bunched behind Wood with par 71's were "Red" Krueger of Beloit, Wis., Mark Fry of San Francisco and Stan Kertes of Los Angeles.

The handsome New Jersey's star's lead was regarded as far from safe, however, with more than two-thirds of the fastest field ever assembled on the West coast yet to finish.

APPEAL TO BE ASKED ON AAA COURT RULING

U. S. Judge in Florida in Decision Holds Act is Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. — (UP) — The decision of a federal judge in Florida holding the agricultural adjustment act unconstitutional will be appealed immediately, officials of the department of agriculture said today.

Mr. Roosevelt took cognizance of efforts to raise funds for the Warm Springs foundation by observing:

"Warm Springs, through the generous gifts which are being made to the foundation, will be able to increase its usefulness nationally, especially in the field of infantile paralysis in Georgia.

The chief executive, remembered by friends at home and abroad, by plain citizens and reigning kings, wound up a nation-wide celebration in his honor last night by appealing for a national consciousness in the fight against infantile paralysis.

Himself a victim of the disease, Mr. Roosevelt took cognizance of efforts to raise funds for the Warm Springs foundation by observing:

"Warm Springs, through the generous gifts which are being made to the foundation, will be able to increase its usefulness nationally, especially in the field of infantile paralysis.

"We shall be able to take more people and I hope that these people will be able to come to us on the recommendation of doctors in every state of the union. I want to stress, however, that the problem of the crippled child is so great in every community and in every state the local facilities for caring for the crippled need the support of the interest of every citizen."

Pending review by higher courts, the decision will not affect AAA operations, except in the Florida judicial district, it was said.

The decision was made by Judge Alexander Akerman in Tampa, Fla. He granted citrus growers an injunction restraining enforcement of crop proration. Judge Akerman based his decision on his interpretation that there was no constitutional basis for giving the secretary of agriculture powers over an individual.

United States District Judge Akerman declared the decision unconstitutional.

"When considered in the light of the Constitution, the Agricultural Adjustment Act is so full of holes you could drive eight yards of oxen through it," the judge declared.

The decision was made by Judge Akerman in granting a restraining order to a group of Florida citrus growers enjoining the Florida control committee from enforcing orders for pro-rating citrus shipments under the AAA.

The judge said he would be more than happy if he could avoid deciding the questions involved in the case, "but if I sidestep I'd be a coward." He added that public clamor and threats could not deter him from ruling as he saw the matter.

The decision followed a two-day hearing on injunction proceedings brought by the Hillsborough Packing company and the Lake Fern Groves, Inc. They complained against AAA orders that would reduce citrus shipments on a pro-rata basis.

The judge said an army of men greater than George Washington, and more power than Caesar or Napoleon, all without constitutional authority. He criticized Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for refusing to appear in the suit. Since the court had no jurisdiction over Wallace, the suit was dismissed so far as it affected him, but the restraining order was granted against the Florida Control Committee.

MACON WILL VISIT SOUTHLAND MONDAY

CROWN POINT, Ind., Jan. 31. — (UP) — John Dillinger, "kill-crazy" Indiana desperado, today clung to a vanishing hope that "one more chance" to shoot his way out of a new tight place, this time the Lake county jail.

Under the muzzles of sub-machine and riot guns, Dillinger sat in a cell, awaiting trial on charges of murdering Policeman William P. O'Malley of East Chicago.

Mrs. Lillian Holly, Lake county's woman sheriff, took elaborate precautions against affording Dillinger another opportunity to shoot it out. The long-sought outlaw was placed in her charge after he had been brought back by airplane from Tucson, Ariz., where he was captured.

Dillinger entered the jail with one regret, that he had been unable to "shoot it out" with Tucson police.

The handsome New Jersey's star's lead was regarded as far from safe, however, with more than two-thirds of the fastest field ever assembled on the West coast yet to finish.

The chief executive, remembered by friends at home and abroad, by plain citizens and reigning kings, wound up a nation-wide celebration in his honor last night by appealing for a national consciousness in the fight against infantile paralysis.

Speaking on behalf of the national committee, McKinney thanked all persons whose work made the party a success in Santa Ana. He stated that the women's division had really put the General Chairman B. Z. McKinney attended both the dance at the Masonic temple and the card party at the Elbell club, where he made brief talks, expressing appreciation for the support of the events in Santa Ana honoring President Roosevelt and helping raise a permanent endowment fund for the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Each of the city theaters, Broadway, West Coast and Walker's State, drew large crowds for each successive show of the evening's entertainment bill. Parties in most cases, went from the picture show to one or the other of the remaining party attractions.

SALES TAX IS JUSTICE DEPT. STRICKEN OUT APPROPRIATION BY COMMITTEE BILL REPORTED

Proposal for Inclusion in Tax Revision Bill is Defeated 17 to 4

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. — (UP) — The house ways and means committee today rejected a proposal to incorporate a sales tax provision in the tax revision bill.

At the same time the committee rescinded previous action and stuck from the tentative draft a provision requiring a joint income tax returns by husbands and wives in community property states.

By a vote of 17 to 4 the committee virtually sidetracked the sales tax proposal by referring the question to a subcommittee. Rep. Crowther, Repn., N. Y., had broached the sales levy, arguing it would bring in $400,000,000 and fees for jurors and witnesses.

The committee voted 13 to 12 to strike out of the draft the joint return provision. It also turned down a proposal by Rep. Frear, Repn., Wis., for a provision giving full publicity on income tax returns. No record vote was taken.

The committee voted for a provision permitting consolidation of a legal branch of the treasury under one general counsel.

In addition it approved a provision whereby the original refiner of oil and gasoline would pay the present one cent a gallon federal levy on gas and four cents on oil.

Under this system the original manufacturer would pay the tax and be given a refund where the products are sold tax free.

Chairman Hill of the subcommittee on taxation said that apparently the provision for a five cent a pound levy on cocoanut oil will remain in the bill. He said that so far there was no indication that the provision would be stricken out.

The committee said the increase "will provide additional agents to expedite consideration of unassigned cases as well as an increase in personnel here to develop the

BROWN PREPARED TO APPEAR AT HEARING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. — (UP) — A mythical pot of gold to-day transformed an ordinary house-wrecking job into a treasure hunt.

The gold, $150,000 in two metal chests, was said to have been secreted in an old saloon by Grover C. Bergdoll, draft dodger, before he was committed to military prison.

Bergdoll said he had communicated with Brown on receiving the committee's request for information and received the instructions.

Chairman Black sought to press questions on the witness but Senator Austin, Repn., Vt., protested and Black sent a hurried call to get more committee members together to pass on Bergdoll's request.

Bergdoll was called as a witness as the committee sought to trace the advent of prohibition was broken on the vessel's bow

Division of Investigation of Interior Department Submits Report

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. — (UP) —

The division of investigation of the interior department revealed today that of approximately 100 reports on alleged irregularities in the CWA that it had submitted to Civil Works Administrator Hopkins, "about 10 or 15" suggested criminal prosecution.

The division and the United States department of justice have been cooperating with Hopkins in a widespread drive to eliminate graft and political racketeering in the civil works and relief programs.

It was understood that about 200 investigations have been conducted by the interior department at the request of the civil works and relief administrations. Many, it was said, revealed that criminal prosecution was not warranted and that prevailing conditions could be corrected by disciplinary steps.

Most intensive activities of the investigation division, it was learned, have been in Indiana, Illinois, Maryland, California and Massachusetts. Officials indicated that in several instances United States attorneys had been requested to prosecute.

Under an arrangement between investigating authorities and Hopkins, when federal agents scattered throughout the country, find evidence of criminal acts in the CWA and relief programs, they immediately consult United States attorneys in their districts.

The proclamation was issued under the gold reserve act of 1934 signed by the president yesterday. Under the plan a slash is made in the gold content of the dollar in the hope that domestic commodity price advances may be promoted and to protect American commerce from foreign raids.

In announcing the proclamation, the president read the following explanatory statement:

"The new gold content of the dollar became effective the moment I signed the proclamation.

Pending review by higher courts, the decision will not affect AAA operations, except in the Florida judicial district, it was said.

The decision was made by Judge Alexander Akerman in Tampa, Fla. He granted citrus growers an injunction restraining enforcement of crop proration. In conclusion the President extended his thanks to the thousands who sent him greetings.

"Thank you," he said, "but lack the words to tell you how deeply I appreciate what you have done on what is to be the happiest birthday we have ever known."

GOVERNMENT STILL ON LINDBERGH CASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. — (UP) — The department of justice, seeking to solve the Lindbergh kidnapping, considers the handwriting on the notes left by the abductor one of the foremost clues that can be followed, it was disclosed today.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation, testifying before a house appropriations subcommittee said that "during the month of November we made 300 examinations of handwriting in making comparisons with the original Lindbergh notes."

"We are constantly on the alert for those persons who perpetrated the Lindbergh kidnapping and murder," said Hoover, "and their handwriting is one of the best clues that can be followed in investigation of that case."

Hoover said that since enactment of the federal kidnapping law, the department up to January 1 had been called in 15 kidnapping cases.

The decision was made by Judge Akerman in granting a restraining order to a group of Florida citrus growers enjoining the Florida control committee from enforcing orders for prorating citrus shipments under the AAA.

Mrs. Mollison said she was returning from an aviation party in Miami when stopped at about 3 a. m. Monday by two "discreet" men in civilian clothes.

now in session adjourned out of respect to the dead. It was voted to bury them in the wall of the Kremlin, a high Soviet honor.

Reason Unknown

The reason for the catastrophe was not known. When the balloon, the Syrinx, struck the ground the force of the crash detached the gas bag, which floated away when freed of the gondola's weight.

Reports of the crash were current in Moscow last night and all during today, but officials refused to confirm it until after it had been announced to the Communist congress.

The three balloonists, Paul Fedoseenko, pilot; A. V. Vasevko, builder of the gondola, and Bilia Uiskin, a physicist from the Leningrad Academy of Science, had been in training for their tasks for months.

The balloon was large, with a gas capacity of 24,800 cubic meters.

The flight was a "surprise" one, starting off without advance notice. Few knew that the balloon had gone up from a military field near Moscow, and it could not be seen because of a murky sky.

For hours the balloonists kept in touch with the earth by radio, however. At noon yesterday they sent a message which said:

"We hear you perfectly and we are continuing our scientific observations without interruption. We are studying the cosmic rays, the condition of the atmosphere, etc. The temperature within the gondola is 20 degrees (68 degrees Fahrenheit.)"

After 8:30 p. m. the messages ceased.

CURTIS DALL AND WIFE LIVING APART

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Mr. and Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, son-in-law and daughter of President Roosevelt, are living at separate addresses, it was revealed today in the January dilatory domiciles pamphlet of the New York social register.

Dall is listed as living at Panacea, an estate on Sleepy Hollow road, North Tarrytown. Mrs. Dall's address is given as the White House, Washington. In the winter edition of the pamphlet, issued in November, the Dalls were listed as living at 49 E. 65th St., President Roosevelt's town house.

Giving a fictitious name and address, a man succeeded in passing a worthless check last Friday at the Empire Grocery, 266 North Euclid way. It was reported to police yesterday.

The man gave the name of George M. English in tendering the customer's draft check from the Farmers and Merchants Savings Bank. He gave his address as 314 Wakeham street, which does not exist, and had signed the name of the check as Joseph P. Otter. He bought groceries costing $2 and took $1.50 in change.

Identification unit and crime statistics unit."

Another significant feature of the measure was an item of $7,125,000 to be used by the president in adjusting salaries of federal foreign service officers who have suffered from the decline of the dollar abroad.

The appropriations subcommittee was informed during hearings that foreign service officers of the state department, for example, "were unable to pay their bills and had to take their children out of school" because of the rise of living costs abroad in terms of the dollar.

Wilbur J. Carr, assistant secretary of state, told the committee he knew "of two cases of suicide as a direct consequence of the situation."

The appropriations committee turned down Secretary of Labor Perkins' request for $4,000,000 for the United States Employment Service, and provided only $1,500,000.

The state department would receive $17,996,200, the justice department $28,506,878, the commerce department $32,240,321, and the labor department $11,920,805. The totals for the four departments were $13,902,222 under the amount appropriated for the present fiscal year, and $4,831,181 under budget estimates.

Officials explained later that the 1,100 agents of the alcohol unit were being transferred to payrolls of the treasury's internal revenue bureau. Previously they had been deputized as revenue agents in order to aid the work of seeing that taxes are paid on all liquor. Officials said they also would continue to aid local authorities in keeping liquor out of dry areas.

The project will result in the rounding off 410 corners that have been declared dangerous to traffic. To date 100 of the corners have been made safe, Ramsey said.

BALLOONISTS LOSE LIVES IN GONDOLA CRASH

Reason Unknown

The reason for the catastrophe was not known. When the balloon, the Syrus, struck the ground, the force of the crash detached the gas bag, which floated away when freed of the gondola's weight.

Reports of the crash were current in Moscow last night and all during today, but officials refused to confirm it until after it had been announced to the Communists.

The three balloonists, Paul Fedoseenko, pilot; A. V. Vasenko, builder of the gondola, and Iliu Usiskin, a physicist from the Leningrad Academy of Science, had been in training for their tasks for months.

The balloon was large, with a gas capacity of 24,000 cubic meters.

The flight was a "surprise" one, starting off without advance notice. Few knew that the balloon had gone up from a military field near Moscow, and it could not be seen because of a murky sky.

For hours the balloonists kept in touch with the earth by radio, however. At noon yesterday they sent a message which said:

"We hear you perfectly and we are continuing our scientific observations without interruption. We are studying the cosmic rays, the condition of the atmosphere, etc. The temperature within the gondola is 20 degrees (68 degrees Fahrenheit.)"

After 8:30 p.m., the messages ceased.

These were birthday cakes, their snowy frosting edged with pink petals and each cake bearing a pink birthday candle.

Radio Broadcast

Merrymakers at every party scene, perhaps most enjoyed the radio broadcast of the central party in the National Capitol and the brief talk by the one to whom such a tremendous honor was paid, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President of the United States, born January 30, 1882.

From the bottom of my heart I am grateful to you for your thought. I wish I could divide myself my six thousand and attend in person each and every one of these birthday parties. I cannot do that, but I can be and am with you all in spirit and in the promotion of this great cause for which we all are crusading.

"No man has ever had a finer birthday remembrance from his friends and fellow than you have given me tonight. It is with an humble and thankful heart that I accept this tribute through me to the stricken ones of our great national family. I thank you, but lack the words to tell you how deeply I appreciate what you have done, and I bid you good night on what is to me the happiest birthday I have ever known."

SAN CLEMENTE
MAYOR TURNS
IN RESIGNATION*Veterans Consider
Legislation Now

Regarded by members as indicative of a growing interest in veteran welfare legislation on the part of dependents and relatives of ex-service men, was the large number of women who last night attended the meeting of the Veterans League held at the Santa Ana Knights of Columbus hall. Charles E. Dixen, of Santa Ana, district commander of the 19th congressional district unit of the organization, presided over the meeting which was largely devoted to discussion of veteran legislation now pending in Congress.

Communications were read from Senators Hiram W. Johnson and William G. McAdoo, and Congressman Sam L. Collins, setting forth their respective attitudes on legislation having a direct bearing upon the Economy act. It was decided to secure further information from Senator McAdoo as to his stand on what is termed presumptive service-connected disability cases, particularly as they relate to veterans of the Spanish-American war and allied campaigns.

Murphine and Hanson, close friends in Seattle and later in San Clemente, have headed opposing factions in the Spanish village following charges of inefficiency and negligence of duty hurled at the Murphine administration. A group of citizens demanded that the then chief of police, Harry Comber, be discharged by the city council. Later, Comber turned in his resignation and the mayor's son, Thomas F. Murphine Jr., was appointed to the place. Mayor Murphine, and Councilmen Oliver Robertson and Earl Von BonHorst were the targets in a recall election. Murphine was kept in office by 48 votes and Robertson by two votes and Von BonHorst lost by one vote but in a special election, defeated William Barry by one vote to regain his place on the council.

Murphine's resignation makes the third from the city council in a year. H. H. Cotton and Robert Plume having resigned in that time. A. T. Smith, who was named to Cotton's place, is reported to be in line for the mayor's office.

The following statement of Ole Hanson was given to The Register today following circulation of reports that he was planning to take over a realty development on an island near Mobile, Ala.:

"The story of my leaving San Clemente and Orange county and going to Alabama is a little premature. The facts are that I have been investigating several propositions during the last few months but have accepted none.

I will continue at San Clemente and the events of the past few days have encouraged me greatly in relation to the coming back in Southern California.

"Of course, distant fields always seem greener but when real estate comes back, Orange county and its coast will surely come back.

"I have had a hard struggle and it looks as though we will win out. The fight for lower taxes at San Clemente is about won. The tax eaters will not long continue to outnumber the tax payers."

El Herald de San Clemente, published by Robert Hanson, son of the city's founder, was recently taken over by S. A. Meyer, Newport Beach publisher, under a year's lease.

SANTA ANA TO CHANGE BELL
SAIL SATURDAY FOR OLD MEXICO

A large Santa Ana and Orange county representation will be among the crowd of 500 anticipated on the United Fruit company docks at Wilmington Saturday noon to bid bon voyage to local travelers accompanying the second Southern California cruise to Mexico. Included on the passenger list are the following Santa Ana women: Mrs. A. B. Rouselle, Mrs. Tarver Montgomery, Mrs. S. A. Jones and Mrs. L. K. King.

The ship, filled to capacity two weeks ago, will be re-chartered in April for a third cruise to accommodate Mexican enthusiasts of Orange and other Southern California counties unable to join the February group, it was revealed today by Don E. Hillman of Los Angeles, cruise director.

An unique cargo is being shipped by the Long Beach members of the cruise, who are taking south with them a gigantic letter, six feet in height, specially constructed for this cruise, and addressed to President Rodriguez of Mexico. The letter, to be officially presented to the president in the Mexican capital, is the original medium through which the Long Beach patriots hope to acquaint the people of Mexico with the advantages of their local harbor. The Long Beach citizens will make the presentation in a body as representatives of the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce. Orange county and other members of the party likewise will be presented to Santa Ana to face charges of grand theft and violation of the corporate securities act, interrupted in August, 1932, when Mitchell jumped $3000 ball after being bound over to the superior court.

While the February party will be in Mexico during the festive pre-Lent season, local members of the forthcoming April cruise will be privileged to enjoy the season of native carnivals and fiestas which yearly follows the Mexican Lent, it was learned. The Orange county travelers are due to reach Manzanillo next Tuesday, traveling to Mexico City by private train via Guadalajara. They will leave the capital by automobile February 15, motoring to Coahuila, Cuernavaca, Taxco and thence to Acapulco Bay, where they will re-board the ship, returning to Wilmington the following Tuesday, February 20.

SAN CLEMENTE
MAYOR TURNS IN RESIGNATION

Thomas F. Murphine, sr., mayor of San Clemente for the past six years, and storm center in a recent political fight that rocked the community, turned in his resignation and will be acted upon at the city council session Friday night.

In a statement today, Murphine declared that personal business required his presence in Los Angeles. He said that his plans for the future were undecided.

Murphine indicated that later on he might establish a law office in Santa Ana. He is living at 1900 West Forty-second street, Los Angeles.

Murphine and Hanson, close friends in Seattle and later in San Clemente, have headed opposing factions in the Spanish village following charges of inefficiency and negligence of duty hurled at the Murphine administration. A group of citizens demanded that the then chief of police, Harry Comber, be discharged by the city council. Later Comber turned in his resignation and the mayor's son, Thomas F. Murphine jr., was appointed to the place. Mayor Murphine, and Councilmen Oliver Robertson and Earl Von BonHorst were the targets in a recall election. Murphine was kept in office by 48 votes and Robertson lost by two votes and Von BonHorst lost by one vote but in a special election defeated William Barry by one vote to regain his place on the council.

Murphine's resignation makes the third from the city council in a year. H. H. Cotton and Robert Plume, having resigned in that time. A. T. Smith, who was named to Cotton's place, is reported to be in line for the mayor's office.

Veterans Consider

Regarded by members as indicative of a growing interest in veteran welfare legislation on the part of dependents and relatives of ex-service men, was the large number of women who last night attended the meeting of the Veterans Voters League held at the Santa Ana Knights of Columbus hall. Charles E. Dixon, of Santa Ana, district commander of the 19th congressional district unit of the organization, presided over the meeting which was largely devoted to discussion of veteran legislation now pending in Congress.

Communications were read from Senators Hiram W. Johnson and William G. McAdoo, and Congressman Sam L. Collins, setting forth their respective attitudes on legislation having a direct bearing upon the Economy act. It was decided to secure further information from Senator McAdoo as to his stand on what is termed presumptive service-connected cases, particularly as they relate to veterans of the Spanish-American war and allied campaigns.

Pointing an accusing finger at the National Economy League was an address delivered by Fred Vollmer, an attorney, formerly of Davenport, Iowa, now residing here, which dealt with the disastrous effects of the Veterans Economy Act. In the course of his remarks the speaker said there had been a large number of suicides among war veterans since the passage of the measure.

Murphine and Hanson, close friends in Seattle and later in San Clemente, have headed opposing factions in the Spanish village following charges of inefficiency and negligence of duty hurled at the Murphine administration. A group of citizens demanded that the then chief of police, Harry Comber, be discharged by the city council. Later Comber turned in his resignation and the mayor's son, Thomas F. SANTA ANA TO CHANGE BELL
SAIL SATURDAY OPERATION ON FOR OLD MEXICO TRAFFIC SIGNS

Whether or not Santa Ana is becoming "sound conscious," persons in the vicinity of the traffic signals in the business district are being relieved of the irritating ringing of the bells at steady intervals throughout the day.

City Electrical Inspector W. O. Packard is busy remodeling the signals to eliminate the steady ringing and substitute a single stroke on the gongs each time the arms operate. Taking the hint from the newer systems in Los Angeles, which ring only once, Packard started experimenting with the bells here and has now changed the signals to a Mexican cruise to Mexico. Included on the passenger list are the following Santa Ana women: Mrs. A. B. Rouselle, Mrs. Tarver Montgomery, Mrs. S. A. Jones and Mrs. L. K. King.

The ship, filled to capacity two weeks ago, will be re-charted April for a third cruise to Mexico. The passengers are American enthusiasts of the newer systems in Los Angeles and other Southern California counties, unable to join the February group. It was revealed today by Don E. Hillman of Los Angeles cruise director.

An unique cargo is being shipped by the Long Beach members of the cruise, who are taking south with them a gigantic letter, six feet in height, specially constructed for this cruise, and addressed to President Rodriguez of Mexico. The letter, to be officially presented to the president in the Mexican capital, is the original medium through which the Long Beach patriots hope to acquaint the people of Mexico with the advantages of their local harbor. The Long Beach citizens will make the presentation in a body as representatives of the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce. Orange county and other members of the party likewise will be presented to the executive during the group's seven-day stay in Mexico City.

While the February party will be in Mexico during the festive pre-Lent season, local members of the forthcoming April cruise will be privileged to enjoy the season of native carnivals and fiestas which yearly follows the Mexican Lent, as was learned. The Orange county travelers are due to reach Manzanillo next Tuesday, traveling to Mexico City by private train via Guadalajara. They will leave the capital by automobile February 15, motoring to Cozumel, Cozumel, Taxco and thence to Acapulco Bay, where they will re-board the ship returning to Wilmington the following Tuesday, February 20.

Information regarding the "Chiriqui" sailing Saturday or plans for the April cruise, expected to duplicate the earlier trips, may be obtained from the World Travel Bureau, First National bank, this city. It was learned that Mitchell planned to sail to Tallahassee last week when it was learned that Mitchell planned to carry his flight to the federal courts.

Under the old system, the signals on each gong vibrated from 12 to 15 times with each signal, Packard explained. This not only created a lot of noise but quickly wore down the plungers and made it necessary to install new ones about once every three weeks. When the gong is only struck once, the plungers and the gongs should last indefinitely, he said.

The signals at Fourth and Main street operate about 12 hours per day and change about 2880 times in that period. By eliminating the repeated ringing with the single stroke system, each plunger is relieved of about 40,000 strokes each day, it was estimated. If this total was multiplied by the number of the signals have been operating since 1927, when they were installed, an enormous amount of wasted noise and energy would be the result, Packard said.

WORK ON CUT-OFF

Construction has begun on the new San Bernardino-Lancaster cut-off, according to the National Automobile club. The work is scheduled to be completed on October 26, 1934. So far operations consist of clearing and grading.

On the first day of the new San Bernardino-Lancaster cut-off, the signals on each gong vibrated from 12 to 15 times with each signal, Packard explained. This not only created a lot of noise but quickly wore down the plungers and made it necessary to install new ones about once every three weeks. According to testimony given this morning Reynolds and his aunt returned to their party and attended Reynolds' approach to Overstreet in an effort to learn the reason for the attack. Overstreet is said to have struck him again. The two men disappeared from the dance hall, according to testimony, and fought in a vacant lot. Overstreet is said to have knocked Reynolds down twice and then leaping upon him bit off a portion of his left ear.

Jurors chosen to hear the evidence were: Etta A. Howard, May Verburg, Della M. Davis, J. A. Small, Frances MacMullen, C. K. Lee, Cora L. Dugdale, Margaret B. Steffet, Irene W. Kingsberry, Adam Scherer, Mrs. Ida Spaulding and Ida E. Dunphy.

ROMAN LAUDS DEMOCRACY AS GOVERNMENT

FLOOD CONTROL TO BE TOPIC OF MEET
THURSDAY NIGHT

"Democracy is superior to communism, fascism and every other form of dictatorship because democracy is a form of living and thinking and acting in which the personality and the individual are released to live a deeper, richer and fuller life."

"In a democracy education, forums, free speech, a free press and all the arts combine to give expression to free men from the enslaving influences of dictatorships and release them to the development of a well-rounded life, to become gods after the ideas of the ancient Greeks." Such is Dr. Frederick W. Roman's definition and creed of democracy as expressed last night in the Temple theater at the conclusion of summing up the philosophy of democracy as developed during the eighteenth century.

Declaring that the discussion of current events, and the current theories of economics and government were not enough to develop a sound system of government, but that somewhere along the line the philosophy of government and its relation to scientific fact and experience must be studied, Dr. Roman urged that earnest and sincere people study and work toward that real understanding which alone would produce soundness free from the errors of human shortcoming.

He declared that it was really impossible to understand the Declaration of Independence or the Constitution of the United States unless one knew of the philosophical and scientific thought which preceded their formation.

Paying tribute to the scientists of the seventeenth century and the philosophers of the eighteenth who developed the idea of a universe governed by law and overthrew the previous theology and philosophy, the speaker told of changing thought in the world which led to the formation of a western democracy and which is still developing toward a sounder and keener and truer government.

"Scientific and philosophical discoveries led the world beyond the mechanical interpretation of life to the belief in the possibility of an active mental and emotional force, to a view of life which is striving toward perfection, toward a democratic means of arriving at a deeper, richer and fuller living for the individual," said Dr. Roman.

Between the current events and the lecture a radio brought the birthday talk of President Roosevelt to the audience.

COLDS Go Overnight

When You Take The Right Thing!

A cold doesn't have to run its course and expose you to serious complications. A cold can be routed overnight if you go about it the right way. First of all, a cold being an internal infection, calls for internal treatment. Secondly, a cold calls for a COLD remedy and not for a "cure-all."

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippiness and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30¢ and 50¢. Ask for it by the full name and beware of dealers who suffer substitutes—Adv.

OIL OPERATORS SUED BY STATE FOR $500.000

Continuing its fight on oil operators in the Huntington Beach field who are allegedly tapping the submerged oil pool under state owned tidelands, the State this morning filed another suit seeking to permanently enjoin operators of the well from further alleged damages.

The suit filed this morning names as defendants W-K Oil company and the United Oil company as holders of the lease and sublease to the property on which the well is drilled; Minnie Ford Dixon and A. Stanton Dixon, owners of the property; H. John Eastman Ltd., H. John Eastman as an individual, R. H. Garrison, the Huntington Beach company, Pacific Electric Land company, Pacific Electric Railway company, the Standard Oil company, X company, Y company, Z company and Does 1 to 1000.

According to the complaint Well No. 2 is the hole which it is alleged was "whistled" in order to tap the state tidelands pool. It is located on the Dixon property 280 feet north of the high-water mark. The estimated daily production of the well is alleged to be in excess of 1912 barrels of oil and from two to five million cubic feet of gas.

In addition to seeking to permanently enjoin the operators of the property from further alleged trespass of the tidelands pool or removal of oil and gas the state is seeking to have the well capped and an accounting made for all gas and oil removed to date, and a court order paying to the State all money received from the sale of the oil in addition to $500,000 damages for alleged trespass.

S. A. VISITOR URGES USE OF AMERICAN SHIPS

After a visit of several days with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Otis, 2226 Victoria drive, Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Denton, of Arkansas City, Kansas, planned to leave today for San Francisco and to continue a world tour.

Denton was a commissioner of the United States Shipping Board until last summer, when the board was absorbed by the Department of Commerce. He and his wife arrived here Sunday from New York to visit Otis and J. A. Prescott, of Tucson.

The former commissioner at one time was a cashier in Otis' bank in Arkansas. He and his wife plan to spend about 10 days in California before reembarking on their tour of the world.

In an interview, Denton declared that American patronage of American ships and American government subvention for American freighters are needed to keep a modern, vigorous merchant marine in the seas.

"If Americans engaged in foreign trade would specify the waterborne trade with this country be carried in American bottoms, our vessels plying in distant lanes would be taken care of," he said.

"Deciding the effectiveness of this because we are not staunch enough in following our trade flag, we should do for freighters what we have been doing for passenger carriers—assist them by some sort of subvention, subsidy; call it what you will."

"Most of our freighters are too slow to get out of their own way.

DRIVER BLAMED IN QUIZZ ON DEATH CRASH

Deciding that Thomas White, 21, 610 South Garney street who was fatally injured in a terrific head-on auto collision early Sunday morning on North Main and Buffalo street, came to his death from the negligent manner and high speed with which he operated his car, a coroner's jury gave a verdict of accidental death at the inquest yesterday and exonerated the other two drivers from blame.

It was brought out in the questioning by Coroner Earl Abbey that White and Al Neer, 701 Halcyon street, were racing their cars north on Main street and were travelling about 60 miles per hour when the accident occurred.

Neer testified that White's car pushed him with the bumper from Seventh street past Seventeenth street, and that the cars increased speed from 40 to 60 miles an hour.

John D. Newland, 45, Huntington Beach rancher and Edward Richards, 211 East Tenth street, has passenger in the car which was struck by the White machine, both said the other man was driving at a high rate of speed.

Captain Jess Buckles of the police department also told of circumstances surrounding the crash.

Evidence given by Motor Officer B. A. Hershey showed that the car driven by White, which was owned by Kenneth Summers of Fullerton, overturned many times and skidded for 145 feet after the impact, after which the body of White was thrown for an additional 29 feet. Miss Geraldine Stinnett, 16, 419 North Lemon street, riding with White, was pinned in the wreckage and was not as seriously injured. She was confined in Orange County hospital with severe scalp wounds and injured elbows and knees. White never regained consciousness and died 25 hours later at the county hospital.

Both cars were so completely demolished that neither will be repaired. Hershey pointed out that the front wheels, front axle, springs, left fenders, two wheels, top and windshield were torn from White's machine. Gouges, some one inch deep, were left in the pavement at the point of impact, far past the center line of the highway.

Neer said that although his car, occupied by himself, Algernon Howell, Kenneth McKague, Miss Maxine Morgan and Miss Maxine Clement, was struck when the White car rebounded from the Newman car, it did not overturn and he was able to rush Miss Stinnett to the hospital. He said his car had run out of gas in Garden Grove and he had been pushed into Santa Ana by another motorist, afterwards meeting White.

White wrecked another automobile owned by Summers about a year ago and had received a traffic citation in Orange an hour before the wreck for driving with an open muffler and not having an operator's license.

SINCLAIR TO BE TOPIC FOR WALTER MILLS

Walter Thomas Mills, author, lecturer, crusader and technocrat who has frequently appeared at the People's Forum, will return for another lecture at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, it was announced today.

Dr. Mills' subject will be "Can Upton Sinclair End Poverty in California?"

According to Harry S. Gerhart, director of the Forum, there have been many requests for the return of Dr. Mills to the forum. "He has proven very popular with the Orange county audiences in his analysis of the fundamentals of democratic government as embodied in the initiative, the referendum, the recall and the primary laws, and the technological solution to our over-production-under-consumption problem."

"Whether you agree with his conclusions or not, you have to admire the sturdy little orator who for fifty years has been an active factor in American life and has shared in every progressive movement during that time," said the forum leader.

"He has been a crusader in governmental and sociological reform in thirty-four progressive measures now permanently fixed in the laws of this country."

"He is the author of many books. His 'Democracy or Despotism,' and the 'Struggle for Existence,' are well known and have been translated into many languages."

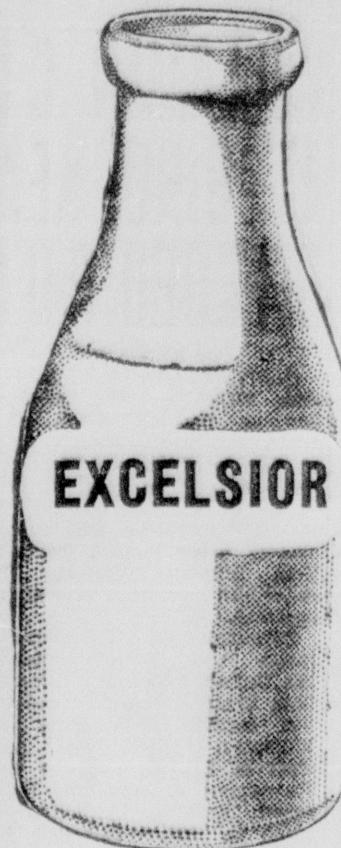

"Dr. Mills' examination of the Upton Sinclair program should be interesting to everyone regardless of any conviction they may have come to, and it is probable that a large crowd will attend this free lecture and the forum discussion," said Gerhart.

F. L. Dearth, mortician at Smith and Tuthill's, who testified that White came to his death from a fractured skull. Frank White, father of the victim, identification witness, and Algernon Howell, who corroborated Neer's testimony.

Funeral services for White were held this morning from the Smith and Tuthill funeral home with the Rev. Perry Schrock officiating.

The death of White brought the total of traffic fatalities this year in the county to five and was the first in Santa Ana.

Your Protection

Can you rely on your judgment to select the best milk out of more than forty brands now sold in Orange County? They appear pretty much the same, and the difference in cost, if any, is so slight that you cannot afford to take any risk.

The most careful enforcement of County regulations cannot guarantee you the fine quality in every bottle, that you desire, unless the name of the distributor is one of known reputation.

Be sure that your home is protected by using milk from a distributor that has established a REPUTATION for the SAFETY and QUALITY of its MILK.

EXCELSIOR milk and dairy products have been standards of quality and safety in Orange County homes for more than nineteen years. Not one case of milk contamination in all that time was caused by Excelsior products.

During times of extreme competitive conditions, brought about by uncontrolled and out-of-the-county influences, it is most important to have your health and well-being protected by the name of a proven milk distributor. EXCELSIOR'S name on the milk cap is one safe and sure guarantee of milk quality. YOU CAN RELY ON IT!

C. C. SPEAKERS HIT PLANS FOR NEW BUILDINGS

FULLERTON, Jan. 31.—The effort to find new school buildings onto California voters, in condemning present buildings as dangerous in case of earthquakes, is a racket, according to Louis Jacobson, member of Placentia Chamber of Commerce, who spoke yesterday at the regular chamber of commerce meeting.

Stuart Stratman, secretary of the chamber, said Orange county can save two million dollars for school purposes by use of the old buildings, made safe by reinforcement, and said that the state code is extreme. No action was taken regarding the practice of condemning school buildings.

Announcement was made that efforts are being made to get additional schools, including a high school, for Placentia, under the PWA program.

500 HEAR TALK ON NARCOTICS BY E. A. ROWELL

almost in half since the legalization of liquors," Earle Albert Rowell, author and investigator of the dope traffic, said last night before he showed 12 slides and four reels of motion pictures to about 500 people gathered in the Fullerton Union High school music hall.

Rowell, who was presented through the united auspices of Fullerton secondary schools and the Ministerial association, said an edict may be made in from two to five weeks and then it is almost a hopeless task to cure him. "I believe that the best thing to do with him is to put him in government houses, give him the allowance for fighting the narcotic traffic and run-running situation of his life," Rowell said. "That will prevent him from committing the crimes to obtain the drug and will keep him from agonies in trying to cure the habit which is less curable than cancer."

The making of drugs is under government control and if the governments so decided they could almost stamp out the narcotic traffic, Rowell stated.

WAR—Nearly everyone here, including congress, is sold on the idea that there will be a far eastern war in the spring and that we may be drawn into it.

Officials dare not say such a thing openly, but they go around talking about it in such loud stage whispers that even a deaf mute could hear them.

They have the house appropriations sub-committee on the run approving funds that are needed and some that are not essential for naval upbuilding and army improvements. The big ship lobbyist, William B. Shearar, has a new hat and overcoat and goes through congressional halls grinning like a Cheshire cat. The peace societies are bringing their hands and writing open letters of protest which no one reads. They are also trying to buttonhole congressmen who avoid them.

The whole current of affairs is obvious—in fact, just a little too obvious.

When war talk gets as open as it is now, the war is usually avoided.

LANDIS—Most heartening of all is the reported change in Federal Trade Commissioner Landis—a member of the Dickinson committee. He had drawn Wall Street's award of the shiniest New Deal horns and till—except only those allotted to Rex Tugwell and Felix Frankfurter—for his hard-boiled attitude as administrator of the Securities Act. He was supposed to be Frankfurter's disciple in a subtle plot to kill the securities business. Now he indicates instead a wish to see it function healthfully as long as it behaves. Wall Street is surprised and grateful.

The British recently called a spectacular conference of their fleet admirals in Far Eastern waters. It was the first conference of that sort held in 18 years. Ordinarily such a meeting would be attended with the utmost secrecy. This one was widely advertised ahead of time by the British government, and staged at Singapore with extra publicity trimmings.

Just prior to the time that war was arranged, the British Foreign Minister, Sir John Simon, dropped down to Rome to discuss world peace with Premier Mussolini. Before and after the visit Mussolini broadcast the news that war was imminent in the Far East. He pointed a finger at Japan and told her that her war preparations must cease.

Mussolini started talking his way about the time he received a visit from the Russian foreign minister, M. Litvinoff, who was then on his way back to Russia with U. S. recognition in his pocket.

Accidentally with M. Litvinoff's departure from this country, such prominent U. S. officials as Ambassador to Russia Bullitt and Chief Hornbeck of the state department far eastern division dropped a few remarks about Japan. They were diplomatically ambiguous, but clearly designed to show our dissatisfaction.

DEDUCTIONS—The relationship between those events has not been lost on Japan. That is what her statesmen are talking about when they grieve in the press that the world is "closing in" on Little Nippon. Of course the Japanese statesmen would read into the situation the idea that the world is going to conquer them.

The fact seems to be that the world is trying in a new way to stop a war. It is trying to tell Japan that she will gain nothing but trouble if she tries to attack Russia in the spring. It is saying: "Don't start a fight or we may get in and then where will we be?"

That may not be a very idealistic way of promoting world peace, but it is the only way which seems to have a chance of being effective now.

ARMS—Another hidden factor in the situation is just as important as the war angle. That is naval armaments.

Japan has told us that she will not continue her 3-to-5 treaty ratio with us next year. She has not sent any notes or called us on the telephone, but there are more ways of talking across oceans than the normal methods of communications.

Her officials have planted in our press the reply that we will not agree to increasing the 3-to-5 ratio and that we want the treaty continued as is. Japan already has parity with us on submarines and a 7-to-10 ratio on cruisers and destroyers.

You may have noticed that most of our naval upbuilding program relates to cruisers and destroyers.

PROSPECTS—There seems to be fairly good grounds for suspecting that part of our proposed program is NOT founded on war hysteria but upon armaments strategy. Some of these ships may never be built.

We have been going into these naval conferences, paraded down to the limit, with nothing to trade.

With this program we have now, we will be in a highly strategic position to negotiate for effective curtailments of armaments building at the 1935 conference.

NOTES—An old-time newsman recently returned from the Far East with the observation that Japan's war preparations were more obvious than those in Europe before the outbreak in 1914.

Senator McAdoo is preparing to champion a home state industry by taking charge of the movie stars coming here Friday for their code hearing.

Chairman Summers performed a Sheridan feat, galloping into the house at the last moment to take charge of the final action on the money bill. House leaders were frantic because they could not find him.

The senate debate on the money bill was not much above that of the house. The senators knew little more about the bill than the country generally. It was merely a case of approving what the President wanted.

A newsman stopped a senator after the debate, saying: "I did not know you were a money expert, Senator." The senator looked at him quizzically, not knowing how to take the remark. Finally the senator expanded his chest and said: "I thought when you first said that you were trying to kid me."

RELIEF—

Stock Exchange circles are breathing easier these days about that old dog Congress will prescrib.

Despite widespread optimism that forthcoming regulation would be painless they've been a mite worried underneath. It didn't seem in the cards that Washington could be gentle. But word of the Dickinson committee's recommendations strengthens their hopes.

The Exchange will just be surprised—not slugged.

LANDIS—

Most heartening of all is the reported change in Federal Trade Commissioner Landis—a member of the Dickinson committee. He had drawn Wall Street's award of the shiniest New Deal horns and till—except only those allotted to Rex Tugwell and Felix Frankfurter—for his hard-boiled attitude as administrator of the Securities Act.

He was supposed to be Frankfurter's disciple in a subtle plot to kill the securities business. Now he indicates instead a wish to see it function healthfully as long as it behaves. Wall Street is surprised and grateful.

There are even whispers that Landis may officially suggest softening the roughest edges of the Securities Act itself to help untangle corporate financing problems. The RFC is in no position to undertake refunding operations in the grand manner and corporations with maturities must be helped somehow.

SUPERVISION—

Government supervision of the Exchanges will be exercised through a Federal regulating agency with flexible powers. It would keep a close eye on security market practices but would crack down only if existing authorities fell down on their job or needed co-ordination.

In addition all brokers will have to take out a federal license but that doesn't hurt their feelings. Only one danger still lurks from the Wall Street angle. The Senate committee might throw the Dickinson survey in the ash can and start all over on a new tack. But those who should know say it isn't likely.

Local experts agree the government will be wise to duck direct responsibility for future security market fluctuations.

GAINS—

Investment trust officials are slightly surprised that nobody in Washington has talked about regulating them. They think maybe it's because no one has yet discovered how to define an investment trust legally. At that there are rumblings of a law to forbid members of a security house which sponsored an investment trust from sitting as directors of the trust itself. This might prevent the use of trusts as dumping grounds for state securities—a fairly common practice in the past.

Twenty investment trusts which have reported for 1933 show an average asset gain of six per cent during the year. This looks nice until you compare it with the gain in the general market for the same period—which was about 66 per cent.

SWOPE—

Electrical circles are buzzing about the "Swope plan" recently put forward in England.

It corresponds roughly to a NRA code for the British electrical industry and makes a special point of "self-control of industry by majority vote." Experts say the move marks an undercover struggle for dominance between two groups of electrical interests backed by banks.

In plain English, "control by majority vote" means control by Associated Electrical Industries. One of the directors of this organization is president of International General Electric—which Gerard Swope is chairman. International General Electric in turn is controlled by New York's General Electric. The tie-up makes it look as if Swope's interest in industrial fascism is more than academic.

We have been going into these naval conferences, paraded down to the limit, with nothing to trade.

With this program we have now, we will be in a highly strategic position to negotiate for effective curtailments of armaments building at the 1935 conference.

Accidentally with M. Litvinoff's departure from this country, such prominent U. S. officials as Ambassador to Russia Bullitt and Chief Hornbeck of the state department far eastern division dropped a few remarks about Japan. They were diplomatically ambiguous, but clearly designed to show our dissatisfaction.

DEDUCTIONS—
The relationship between those events has not been lost on Japan. That is what her statesmen are talking about when they grieve in the press that the world is "closing in" on little Nippon. Of course the Japanese statesmen would read into the situation the idea that the world is going to conquer them.

The fact seems to be that the world is trying in a new way to stop a war. It is trying to tell Japan that she will gain nothing but trouble if she tries to attack Russia in the spring. It is saying: "Don't start a fight or we may get in and then where will you be?"

That may not be a very idealistic way of promoting world peace, but it is the only way which seems to have a chance of being effective now.

ARMS—

Another hidden factor in the situation is just as important as the war angle. That is naval armaments.

Japan has told us that she will not continue her 3-to-5 treaty ratio with us next year. She has not sent any notes or called us on the telephone, but there are more ways of talking across oceans than the normal methods of communications.

Her officials have planted in our press the reply that we will not agree to increasing the 3-to-5 ratio and that we want the treaty continued as is. Japan already has parity with us on submarines and a 7-to-10 ratio on cruisers and destroyers.

You may have noticed that most of our naval upbuilding program relates to cruisers and destroyers.

PROSPECTS—

There seems to be fairly good grounds for suspecting that part of our proposed program is NOT founded on war hysteria but upon armaments strategy. Some of these ships may never be built.

We have been going into these naval conferences now, down to the limit, with nothing to trade.

With this program we have now, we will be in a highly strategic position to negotiate for effective curtailments of armaments building at the 1935 conference.

NOTES—

An old-time newsman recently returned from the Far East with the observation that Japan's war preparations were more obvious than those in Europe before the outbreak in 1914.

Senator McAdoo is preparing to champion a home state industry by taking charge of the movie stars coming here Friday for their code hearing.

Chairman Summers performed a Sheridan feat, galloping into the house at the last moment to take charge of the final action on the money bill. House leaders were frantic because they could not find him.

The Senate debate on the money bill was not much above that of the house. The senators knew little more about the bill than the country generally. It was merely a case of approving what the President wanted.

A newsman stopped a senator after the debate, saying: "I did not know you were a money expert, Senator." The senator looked at him quizzically, not knowing how to take the remark. Finally the senator expanded his chest and said: "I thought when you first said that you were trying to kid me."

RELIEF—

Stock Exchange circles are breathing easier these days about that old Doc Congress will prescribe.

Despite widespread optimism that forthcoming regulation would be painless they've been a mite worried underneath. It didn't seem in the cards that Washington could be gentle. But word of the Dickinson committee's recommendations strengthens their hopes. The Exchange will just be super-vised—not slugged.

LANDIS—

Most heartening of all is the reported change in Federal Trade Commissioner Landis—a member of the Dickinson committee. He had drawn Wall Street's award of the shiniest New Deal horns and tails—except only those allotted to Rex Tugwell and Felix Frankfurter—for his hard-boiled attitude as administrator of the Securities Act.

He was supposed to be Frankfurter's disciple in a subtle plot to kill the securities business. Now he indicates instead a wish to see it function healthfully as long as it behaves. Wall Street is surprised and grateful.

There are even whispers that Landis may officially suggest softening the roughest edges of the Securities Act itself to help untangle corporate financing problems. The RFC is in no position to undertake refunding operations in the grand manner and corporations with maturities must be helped somehow.

SUPERVISION—

Government supervision of the exchanges will be exercised through a Federal regulating agency with flexible powers. It would keep a close eye on security market practices but would crack down only if existing authorities fell down on their job or needed co-ordination.

In addition all brokers will have to take out a federal license but that doesn't hurt their feelings. Only one danger still lurks from the Wall Street angle. The Senate committee might throw the Dickinson survey in the ash can and start all over on a new tack. But those who should know say it likely.

Local experts agree the government will be wise to duck direct responsibility for future security market fluctuations.

GAINS—

Investment trust officials are slightly surprised that nobody in Washington has talked about regulating them. They think maybe it's because no one has yet discovered how to define an investment trust legally.

At that there are rumblings of a law to forbid members of a security house which sponsored an investment trust from sitting as directors of the trust itself. This might prevent the use of trusts as dumping grounds for stale securities—a fairly common practice in the past.

Twenty investment trusts which have reported for 1933 show an average asset gain of six per cent during the year. This looks nice until you compare it with the gain in the general market for the same period—which was about 66 per cent.

SWOPE—

Electrical circles are buzzing about the "Swope plan" recently put forward in England.

It corresponds roughly to a NRA code for the British electrical industry and makes a special point of "self-control of industry by majority vote." Experts say the move marks an undercover struggle for dominance between two groups of electrical interests backed by banks.

In plain English, "control by majority vote" means control by Association of Electrical Industries. One of the directors of this organization is president of International General Electric—which Gerard Swope is chairman. International General Electric in turn is controlled by New York's General Electric. The tie-up makes it look as if Swope's interest in industrial fascism is more than academic.

BEAN GROWERS

Action on the proposed milk ordinance for Orange county was delayed for another week yesterday by the board of supervisors at the request of Supervisor John Mitchell, who said that he preferred to wait until Assistant District Attorney W. F. Menton is present before taking action. Mitchell said that the ordinance presented yesterday was different from the one offered the week before and he would like to have the board's legal advisor study it.

The institute, according to Eastman, will be an all day affair with the morning session devoted to discussion of technical and production factors. Economic aspects of the industry will be discussed at the short afternoon session.

Eastman said that the most outstanding worker in the field covered by each topic has been secured as speaker for the affair. These speakers, later, will confer with the interested growers, according to present plans.

The institute is being held under the auspices of the Agricultural Extension service and the bean growers department of the Orange County Farm Bureau. All growers and their friends, irrespective of organization or association affiliations are invited to attend, Eastman said.

Following is the program for the entire day:

Supervisors Delay Action On Pure Milk Measure

COUNTY HEALTH LIST PROGRAM OFFICER ASKS FOR SESSION OF NEW ORDINANCE BEAN GROWERS

Action on the proposed milk ordinance for Orange county was delayed for another week yesterday by the board of supervisors at the request of Supervisor John Mitchell who said that he preferred to wait until Assistant District Attorney W. F. Menton is present before taking action. Mitchell said that the ordinance presented yesterday was different from the one offered the week before and he would like to have the board's legal advisor study it.

Last week the Orange county unit of the Natural Milk Producers Association presented the milk ordinance and requested its adoption as an emergency measure to eliminate possibility of a milk war in this county. At that time action was delayed for one week on request of Supervisor Mitchell. Yesterday Mrs. Roy Corry, chairman of the association, presented an amended ordinance and requested immediate action.

Dr. K. H. Sutherland, county health officer, spoke briefly on behalf of the measure informing the board for the need of the ordinance. The present county milk ordinance is inadequate and in the past the department has operated under the State Pure Milk law which was satisfactory, Sutherland said. Adoption of the Agricultural Code by the state has repealed the Pure Milk Law leaving this county with no adequate means for safeguarding the milk supply, he explained.

Protection Needed

He said that on February 1 a new ordinance adopted for Los Angeles county will become effective and the health officer of that county has announced a program of strict enforcement. This move will force a large quantity of milk off the market in that county and the milk, unless steps are taken to prevent it, probably will be dumped into Orange county for sale at a lower rate than is charged for milk here at present, he said. This milk, it was pointed out, does not comply with health standards.

The ordinance, as presented yesterday, is a copy of the ordinance now in effect in Santa Barbara where it has proven satisfactory, according to Mrs. Corry. The ordinance provides that any milk that does not comply with requirements of the law may be declared a public nuisance and destroyed.

One other provision in the ordinance as presented yesterday and one that caused considerable discussion was the section providing for inspection of dairies outside of Orange county sending milk into the county. This section provided that the dairies must be inspected and a fee charged including six cents per mile traveled by the inspector. Mitchell said that he did not believe the mileage charge should be included as outside counties inspecting dairies in this county might place a similar charge against the Orange county dairies.

The ordinance also provides that the health officer or someone designated by him shall make those out of the county inspections. Dr. Sutherland suggested that in the event the ordinance is adopted it might prove more satisfactory for him to designate as his representative an approved inspection service already functioning in the area where inspections are to be made.

Mrs. Corry informed the board that new milk price war is looming. She said that one large dairy already has been notified that on February 1 such a war would be started with the price of milk set at 8 cents per quart. This milk she said will be a product that is to be banned in Los Angeles under provisions of the ordinance to become effective there on the same date.

Pursued by photographers, newspapermen and citizens generally, Orange county's famous "bus" pigeon continues to race and ride with his favorite drivers. To date, the bird has successfully avoided being snatched by photographers at close range.

Plans are afoot for taking the pigeon's picture from inside a bus as he flies alongside the driver. George Peterkin, state highway patrolman and president of the National Night Ball league, has taken a number of pictures of the pigeon from a distance and he hopes of eventually getting sufficiently acquainted with the pigeon to snap pictures at close range.

When not flying with a Greyhound or Motor Transit bus the pigeon perches himself atop of a telephone pole at The Arches where he can watch for the buses in safety.

The habit of the bird of flying alongside the buses was noticed two or three weeks ago. Drivers commenced to watch for their feathered friend. Attempts were made to get his picture but each time the pigeon deserted the bus before it reached its destination.

Watchers at Laguna Beach were disappointed one day last week when the pigeon deserted a Greyhound bus for a Motor Transit stage just before the Greyhound pulled into the depot.

Party to Celebrate
Birthday Date

A most enjoyable party staged Saturday night in the S. H. Finey home, 1635 East Fourth street, was perhaps a trifle late as a celebration of the birthday anniversary of Rhodes Finey, son of the home, but nevertheless it was planned by a group of young men to express birthday felicitations to their host.

In arranging for the merry event the young men had invited a group of girls to join them in an evening of bridge and dancing climaxed by the serving of candies, ice cream and a variety of rich cakes.

Unusually clever prizes rewarded those holding special scores in bridge, Mrs. R. Carson Smith and Joe Warner, high, and Miss Pauline Berry and Roderick Smiley, low. The remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing.

For the refreshment hour the valentine motif suggested earlier by tally cards, was apparent in pretty table covers and napkins in heart shaped nut cups.

Sharing the varied features of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. R. Carson Smith, the Misses Louise Dalton of Huntington Beach; Pauline Berry, Marjorie Walton, Frances Roper, Katherine Spicer, Eloise Schrier, Miriam Samuelson, Misses James Lukens, Willard White, Glenn Shaw, Joe Warner, John Hoy, Roderick Smiley and the host, Rhodes Finey.

Elks' Wives to Enjoy
Valentine Party

Plans for the valentine party which Elks' wives are to enjoy Friday afternoon in the social rooms of the Elks' club, were formulated by the hostess group whose members met this week with Mrs. A. G. Flagg, social chairman, in her home, 1320 North Broadway.

The party will have bridge as its chief entertainment feature, and players may select either contract or auction in competing for the interesting prizes. Since it is the February party, the valentine motif will be given prominence, and the committee members have cut out untold dozens of scarlet hearts to be used in festooning the card rooms. Tea will be served at the close of play.

These parties, while planned primarily for wives of members, are especially hospitable in that the wives are permitted to take their friends, and there is no limit to the number that each may invite by making table reservations through the hostesses.

On the coming occasion, hostesses from the general club membership will be Mesdames Robert Mize, Kenneth Goble and Clarence Nisson, while officers' wives serving in this friendly capacity will be Mrs. Robert Walker and Mrs. Donald Jerome. In calling the committee meeting, Mrs. Flagg as general chairman, invited wives of other officers who form her social committee and who were Mesdames Robert C. Currie, E. R. Majors, Milburn Harvey, V. L. Motry, Earl Abbey, Harold Brown and Harry D. Hyde, wife of the exalted ruler.

The Misses Mary Lee Walker and Ruth Eloise Walker, wearing pretty frocks in pastel hues, assisted in seating guests.

Wedding cake was served during the reception which followed. The new Mrs. Evans wore a modish ensemble with a crown of orange blossoms.

Mr. Vogt responded, and then screened motion pictures of Hoover Dam, Boulder City and other points of interest. These were Mr. Vogt's own pictures, brought out by him, and by George Faires. Mr. Vogt, much to his surprise.

After group of child interpretations by Mrs. Emmett Elliott, the clubwomen joined in a guessing contest, using pictures of different members in their babyhood or childhood days. To Mrs. E. M. Waycott, guessing the largest number correctly, the president awarded a pretty cactus garden.

Snappingdragons and other bright-hued blossoms adorning the home were augmented by a great bowl of white and pale yellow narcissus which centered a charmingly appointed table where Mrs. Dale V. Wilson and Mrs. J. J. Jacobs presided at tea and coffee urns. Trays of delectable sandwiches and cookies in equally wide variety with spicy little candies completed the dainty menu served with the aid of Mrs. E. C. Wilson and Mrs. R. G. Carman.

Dr. Harris, presented by Mrs. Thompson, made Child Welfare the theme of an intensely interesting talk, drawing upon personal experiences in the mountain regions of Kentucky for the wealth of anecdotes which he told illustrating points he wished to make.

Before departure of the clubwomen, Mrs. Wells called attention to the change in date of the annual birthday dinner, which will be held in Green Cat cafe on Wednesday, February 7, instead of the preceding day as announced in the club calendar.

MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Dinner

Chilled Tomato Juice (6 oz. glass)

3 tbsps. corned beef hash

1 poached egg

1-2 cups chopped beet greens

1 tsp. butter with vinegar for dressing beats

1-2 grapefruit, no sugar

Clear tea or black coffee

Calory total, 400.

Get away from the conventional round of chops, stews, roasts and what-have-you for dinner and serve an occasional "made dish," than which there is none better than corned beef hash. For convenience sake use the canned beef. Chop it fine and add almost as much chopped cooked potato, a small onion, shredded, lots of parsley, a little salt and plenty of pepper. Moisten with a little milk, brown it quickly in an iron skillet with a little bacon fat. Turn the hash once, then push it into the center to form a mound. Turn the fire very low and let the hash just keep warm and no more. Poach one egg for each portion and serve it

To complete the program, Miss Gladys Campbell of Roosevelt school brought a dozen or more children of the second and third grades, who sang for the clubwomen. It was interesting to hear their fresh young voices in the different parts of the choruses, "O Worship the King" and "The Geography Song," and two demure small maidens in a duet, "The Fly." Equally interesting was the self-possession of a youthful master of ceremonies in announcing the songs. As the children left

Married Flirts

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gypsy Morell and Tom Weaver are married on the same day as Lila Hasting and Derek Bliss, but Lila expects to live in luxury while Gypsy keeps her teaching in a settlement school.

Gypsy is struggling to keep expenses within Tom's income. Another problem is Tom's jealousy of wealthy Marko Broughton who once asked Gypsy to marry him and when they meet at the Bliss home.

When the doctor tells Gypsy she is to have a baby she gives up her job. Summer comes on and it is extremely hot. Gypsy and Tom move to a cottage on Long Island owned by a friend.

The baby is born in September and Gypsy is caring for him and for her home exhausts Gypsy. One night when Tom is detained at the office and she is depressed at loneliness, Marko comes to see her. Gypsy is an engineer whom she met shortly after her marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIV

Derek said, "We haven't had a quiet evening at home for weeks." He said, "I'm tired of this everlasting merry-go-round. Let's cut some of it."

Lila frowned, the expression creasing her smooth white forehead into unbecoming ridges. But she did so hate to frown! But Derek was being tiresome. What else was there to do besides what they already did?

"Don't be stupid," she said firmly. She was sitting at her dressing table, a sheer lace and satin jacket thrown over her fitted crimson slip. Her stockings were sheer; her sandals were of gilded straps. Her yellow hair was smooth as satin except where it sprang just below the temple, into two deep, adroit waves. "Don't be the idiot, darling," she said, arching her neck to enjoy the lovely line in the mirror. "Anyone you were 50 and goutish. It's a lovely party tonight..."

"It's always a lovely party," Derek told her, looking meekly annoyed. "And what happens? We dine, dance with the same people, see the same plays, laugh at the same deadly jokes. Jokes, sometimes I feel as if I were on one of those Coney Island ferris wheels and couldn't get off..."

"Well, that's perfectly silly of you and I don't know what you're talking about." Usually when she talked like this Lila dispensed of her husband's "nullish" moods. Tonight he was different. He was not to be won back to tractability by smiles and scoldings. He persisted in his attitude of discontent.

"It's this beastly way of living," he complained. "In a rabbit warren, with all the rest of the animals. Now if we had a house in the country and a couple of children..."

"A couple! I like that!" Lila, offended by the thought of even one baby, allowed her tinkling laugh to sound at this preposterous notion.

"I'd like a house, a more simple, solid way of living." Derek said stubbornly. "I'd like kids. Wouldn't you?"

Lila threw out her hands. "Of course, darling," she agreed, all sweet reasonableness. "Of course. But later. Not now. We're young. We must amuse ourselves. In five years... in ten, perhaps..."

He set his ten stubbornly. Lila had seen him in this mood once or twice before. He was not to be budged.

"I'm not going tonight, anyway," he said. "I've got a beastly cold. Been feeling rotten all day. And I have a heavy morning with a class tomorrow."

She stared at him, eyes narrowed. "Oh, very well, then!" She turned back to her dressing table.

Derek's eyes lit with triumph. It wasn't often Lila was so amenable. She was sweet, really. He wanted to put his arms around her, to bury his face in the softness of her hair, to tell her all the pretty things she used to like to hear but was too busy to listen to nowadays.

Gypsy Morell and Tom Weaver are married on the same day as Lila Hotaling and Derek Bliss, but Lila expects to live in luxury while Gypsy keeps her job teaching in a semi-private school.

Gypsy has to struggle to keep expenses within Tom's income. An other problem is Tom's jealousy of wealthy Marko Brighton who once asked Gypsy to marry him and whom they meet at the "Blisses" home.

When the doctor tells Gypsy she is to have a baby she gives up her job. Summer comes on and is intensely busy on Long Island owned by a friend.

The baby is born in September and christened David. Caring for him and his wife exhausts Gypsy. One night when Tom is detained at the office and she is depressed by loneliness Hunt Gibson calls. Gibson is an engineer whom she met shortly after her marriage.

Derek said, "We've had a quiet evening at home for weeks." He said, "I'm tired of this everlasting merry-go-round. Let's cut some of it."

"I'm not going tonight, anyway," he said. "I've got a beastly cold. Been feeling rotten all day. And I have a heavy morning with a dentist tomorrow."

She stared at him, eyes narrowed. "Oh, very well, then!" She turned back to her dressing table.

Derek's eyes lighted with triumph. It wasn't often Lila was so amenable. She was sweet, really.

He wanted to put his arms around her, to bury his face in the softness of her hair, to tell her all the pretty things she used to like to hear but was too busy to listen to nowadays.

But before he could say a word she reached for the white and gilt telephone on the low table beside her. She gave a number. Derek, frowning, waited.

"That you, Marko? Yes, Lila. Derek's feeling sick. You're going to the Martins tonight, aren't you? Well, be a lamb and drop by for me. Thanks so much. About 10."

She hung up. "That's that, she said gaily. "I wouldn't miss those Russian dances for worlds. Run along, darling, I told Koto dinner at eight and it's almost that now."

Derek stood up. He had got his way—that is, partly, and yet he wasn't satisfied. Of course it was perfect all right for Lila to go to the Martin party with Marko. Why not? But he had so hoped she'd give the affair up for him. It was such a little thing to do.

Still nursing that sense of bafflement, or defeat, Derek went to his own room. He ran his hand over his chin. He must shave and change and oh, God, he was so tired! What wouldn't he give for a bite by his own fire, a woman opposite him with a quiet voice, in a dark gown?

Lila scarcely ever wore dark things except for street wear. In the evening she was always slim, supple and perfumed, her hair exquisitely coiffed, her skin gleaming. She wore silver tissue and gilt, creamy lace. Soft fabrics rustled deliciously at her approach and soft scents lingered in the air.

Almost like a man in a dress, he dressed for dinner. The meal was, as always, perfectly served; the food pleasant, delicious. But something was missing. Derek found himself muttering under his breath. Better a dish of herbs where love is... But he couldn't remember the rest.

"What did you say, darling?" Lila looked at him oddly.

"Nothing. Nothing." He pulled himself up with a start.

Later he punctiliously pulled out her chair for her, waited while she preceded him into the dim drawing room and lighted her cigarette. Rain was falling over the city now, (Continued on Page 13)

THE TINYMATES

STORY OF HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF. © 1934 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

The Tinies splashed around a bit. "The water's great," said Goldy. "It is just as warm as it can be. We've traveled pretty far."

"Not very many days ago we were where there was ice and snow. We never thought of swimming, there, but, now look where we are."

"Yeah, look!" said Duncy. "We are in the sea and we had best begin to swim up to the shore before we all grow all tired out."

"It's fun to splash around here, but we are wasting time, I fear."

"We'll meet some nice, new friends as soon as we're on land, no doubt."

And so they swam a little while. Then Windy shouted, with a smile. "Look! There's a man down on the beach. He hasn't seen us yet."

"I'll call to him and maybe he will help us get out of the sea. Of course, if he's not friendly, all our plans will be upset."

Then Windy shouted. "Hey, there, friend, 'twill please us all if you will lend a hand and help us get ashore. Row to us, in your boat!"

The old man eyed the bunch and cried, "Why, sure, I'll let you have a ride. I'll be right out there shortly. In the meantime, keep afloat."

"Don't worry! That's what we will do. We'll swim along and wait for you," yelled Oopy. Then they watched the man as he began to row.

It didn't take him very long to reach them. He exclaimed,

"What's wrong? What are you doing out here, and where do you plan to go?"

"We jumped off of a boat," said one, "all thinking that it would be fun to swim up to the island and explore around a bit."

The man replied, "Well, I don't mind. You boys can hang on behind. The girls look tired, however. In my boat I'll let them sit."

CALIENTE GOLF TOURNAMENT WILL BE BROADCAST

travel talks are scheduled each Wednesday.

Barney Oldfield, one of the world's greatest race drivers, will tell another of his interesting experiences of the race track tonight at 6:45 during his broadcast from KREG, by means of electrical transcription, and he will again present his singing "Plymouth Pilgrims."

Final arrangements are being completed to make possible the broadcast of a play-by-play description of the Caliente Annual Golf Handicap, directly from the course and fairways, from KREG tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, a C. B. S. feature.

Program officials stated that up to the present time it was believed that the broadcasts would start at 12:45 p. m., but that this time was not verified officially. The game will be picked up from the course by means of a mobile broadcasting station on short waves and relayed to KREG via Los Angeles.

The tournament will be worth $1500 to the winner this year, and has attracted the entry of many of the outstanding golfers in the country. MacDonald Smith, Paul Runyan, Woodie Town, Creasy, Denny Shute, Leo Diesel, Horton Smith, Bobby Crickshank and Joe Kirkwood are the favorites. They play 72 holes aggregate, 18 holes daily for four days.

Debussy's delightful tone sketch, "En Bateau," descriptive of the sensations experienced in a gently gliding boat, will be featured by Albert Spalding during his recital over the Columbia network including KHJ at 5:30 this evening.

Florence Desmond, charming English impersonator of motion picture stars, who has taken Hollywood by storm, will be the guest artist with the Troubadours at their broadcast over an NBC network including KFI at 6 tonight.

Songs of old Ireland and other favorite ballads mingle on the half-hour recital to be presented by John McCormack during the program over an NBC network including KFI at 6:30 tonight.

Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, will speak over an NBC network including KECA and KFSD during meeting of the Association of General Contractors of America, in a broadcast from the Hotel Willard in Washington, D. C. from 7:30 to 8 tonight. Secretary Ickes will discuss phases of the public works program of special interest to the contractors.

"A Day of Freedom," a story emphasizing the inadequacy of criminal laws, will be dramatized when the "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" program with Warden Lewis E. Lawes is presented over an NBC nation-wide network including KFI at 8:15 tonight.

Dr. Roger H. Dennett, Professor of the Diseases of Children, at the New York Post Graduate Medical School, Columbia University, will speak on "Winter Health of Children" during the Academy of Medicine program at 8:45 a. m. Thursday over KHJ and the Columbia network.

CALIENTE GOLF TOURNAMENT WILL BE BROADCAST

travel talks are scheduled each Wednesday.

Barney Oldfield, one of the world's greatest race drivers, will tell another of his interesting experiences of the race track tonight at 8:40 during his broadcast from KREG, by means of electrical transcription, and he will again present his singing "Plymouth Pilgrims."

Final arrangements are being completed to make possible the broadcast of a play-by-play description of the Caliente Annual Golf Handicap, directly from the greens and fairways, from KREG tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, a C. R. S. feature.

Program officials stated that up to the present time it was believed that the broadcasts would start at 12:40 p. m., but that this time was not verified officially. The game will be picked up from the course by means of a mobile broadcasting station on short waves and relayed to KREG via Los Angeles.

The tournament will be worth $1500 to the winner this year, and has attracted the entry of many of the outstanding golfers in the country. MacDonald Smith, Paul Runyan, Craig Wood, Tom Creasy, Denny Shute, Leo Diegel, Horton Smith, Bobby Cruckshank and Joe Kirkwood are the favorites. They play 72 holes aggregate, 18 holes daily for four days.

Debussy's delightful tone sketch, "En Bateau," descriptive of the sensations experienced in a gently gliding boat, will be featured by Albert Spalding during his recital over the Columbia network including KFJ at 6 tonight.

Florence Desmond, charming English impersonator of motion picture stars, who has taken Hollywood by storm, will be the guest artist with the Troubadours at their broadcast over an NBC network including KFJ at 6 tonight.

Songs of old Ireland and other favorite ballads mingle on the half-hour recital to be presented by John McCormack during the program over an NBC network including KFJ at 6:30 tonight.

Harold L. Ikes, Secretary of the Interior, will speak over an NBC network including KFCA and KFSD during a meeting of the Association of General Contractors of America, in a broadcast from the Hotel Willard in Washington, D. C., from 7:30 to 8:30 tonight. Secretary Ikes will discuss phases of the public works program of special interest to the contractors.

Program officials said that the reason for Florence Martin's appeal and popularity was because of the freshness of her voice, which is imbued with her personality, together with a background of many years of musical training.

CLEARCUT VARIATIONS IN INTERPRETATION OF CONSTITUTION

From Tampa, Florida, comes the news of another extremely important decision from a United States district judge. The Agricultural Adjustment Act was declared unconstitutional.

We have not, of course, a complete report of his opinion. From the extract carried in the news dispatches, it would not appear that it was very judicial in its language, though it may be correct in its law. For the judge used this language, according to the report: "When considered in the light of the Constitution, the Agricultural Adjustment Act is so full of holes that it could drive eight yoke of oxen through it."

It seems that the judge was particularly impatient with the Secretary of Agriculture whom he wanted to appear in the suit, evidently desiring to bring him within the scope of the injunction, which he could not do, as the Secretary did not appear, and the jurisdiction of the court did not reach that far. But he declared that "the Secretary of Agriculture has an army of men greater than George Washington, and more power than Caesar or Napoleon, and without Constitutional authority." This sounds a great deal more like a stump speech than it does the opinion of a Federal judge.

This decision, of course, will be hurried to the Supreme Court for final adjudication. The final determination of this case will be a most important one in the nation. But we are rather impressed that on the same line of reasoning that sustained the Minnesota moratorium case, it will sustain the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

There are two schools of thought in relation to the Constitution, and these two schools of thought are as far apart as the poles. There is no question but what each is equally honest in the opinions which it holds. It is interesting and profitable to note the line of reasoning on each side of this case. Let us peruse a few lines from the opinion of the majority, as written by Chief Justice Hughes. This was the majority opinion which sustained the Constitutionality of the moratorium act, which permitted a mortgagor to hold his property for two years, regardless of his contract with the mortgagee. It says:

The settlement and consequent contraction of the public domain, the pressure of a constantly increasing density of population, the interrelation of the activities of our people and the complexity of our economic interests, have inevitably led to an increased use of the organization of society in order to protect the very bases of individual opportunity. Where, in the earlier days, it was thought that only the concerns of individuals or of classes were involved, and that those of the State itself were touched only remotely, it has later been found that the fundamental interests of the State are directly affected; and that the question is no longer merely that of one part to a contract as against another, but of the use of reasonable means to safeguard the economic structure upon which the good of all depends.

It is no answer to say that this public need was not apprehended a century ago, or to insist that what the provision of the Constitution meant to the vision of that day it must mean to the vision of our time. If by the statement that what the Constitution meant at the time of its adoption it means today, it is intended to say that the great clauses of the Constitution must be confined to the interpretation which the framers, with the conditions and outlook of their life, would have placed upon them, the statement carries its own refutation.

It was to guard against such a narrow conception that Chief Justice Marshall uttered the memorable warning—"We must never forget that it is a constitution we are expounding—a constitution intended to endure for ages to come, and, consequently, to be adapted to the various crises of human affairs."

When we are dealing with the words of the Constitution, said this court in Missouri v. Holland, "we must realize that they have called into life a being the development of which could not have been foreseen completely by the most gifted of its begetters. . . . The case before us must be considered in the light of our whole experience and not merely in that of what was said a hundred years ago."

Now, taking the opinion of the minority of the court, in that part of it directly bearing upon this question, expressed by Justice Sutherland, it said:

It (the Constitution) does not mean one thing at one time, and an entirely different thing at another time. If the contract impairment clause, when framed and adopted, meant that the terms of a contract for the payment of money could not be altered in *in *in by a state statute enacted for the relief of hardy pressed debtors to the end and with the effect of postponing payment or enforcement during and because of an economic or financial emergency, it is but to state the obvious to say that it means the same now...

Chief Justice Taney, in Dred Scott v. Sandford, said that while the Constitution remains unaltered it must be construed now as it was understood at the time of its adoption; that it is not only the same in words but the same in meaning, and as long as it continues to exist in its present form, it speaks not only in the same words, but with the same meaning and intent with which it spoke when it came from the hands of its framers, and was voted on and adopted by the people of the United States. Any other rule of construction would abrogate the judicial character of this court, and make it the mere reflex of the popular opinion or passion of the day. And in South Carolina v. United States, in an opinion by Mr. Justice Brewer, this court quoted these words with approval and said:

"The Constitution is a written instrument. As such its meaning does not alter. That which it meant when adopted it means now. . . . Those things which are within its grants of power, as those grants were understood when made, are still within them, and those things not within them remain still excluded."

It is not difficult to see, in observing these two schools, the one to which the Federal Judge in Tampa, Florida, belongs. He would have stood with the minority in the Supreme court in the Minnesota case. We do not attempt to say that the same facts apply or that the same conclusion will be reached on this case. For it may evolve upon an entirely different theory.

For in the Minnesota case it was held that the power to do this did lay in the legislature, and in this case it was held that the contract carried with it the infirmity of the subject matter, which was within the province of the legislature. There may be powers that have been granted the President, and through him, to the Secretary of Agriculture, which are not powers granted him within the Constitution, and as was decided in the Minnesota case emergencies do not create powers, though they may bring sleeping powers to action.

KING GEORGE GOES WITH THE TIMES

A remark attributed to King George does him credit, and accounts for his grip upon his subjects. He was asked how the Labor Ministry reacted upon him. His answer was, "My grandmother would have been irritated by it; my father would have tolerated it; I go along with the times."

fortunate is the ruler who understands his times, who comes out from his seclusion in the throne room and senses the life of his people. The reason why there are so many rulers living in retirement in Europe, and so many who have found untimely graves, is due to their inability to understand their times and their people. King George is not one of them.

The heir to the British throne, the Prince of Wales, has also gotten the cue. He has been a "good fellow" for many years. Recently he has been consorting with coal miners in their homes and in the mines. To the humble folk who all their lives have been singing "God save the King," he is no longer a figure apart to be held in awe. He has become one of them. He looks upon them as fellow countrymen, with him interested in the welfare of all citizens of the empire upon which the sun never sets.

Queen Victoria, according to her latest biographers, was an irritable old lady. Her popularity was largely the popularity engendered by effective publicity, since after the death of the Prince Consort she retired almost completely from the public gaze. Only on state occasions was she to be seen. King Edward was a good diplomat. He knew how to adjust himself to changes without manifesting personal pique or opposition. King George is sensible enough to go with the times approvingly. The Prince of Wales seems to be destined to be the intimate of all his people. So does royalty change in four generations. It is either to step down to the people, like King George, or go out like the Russian Czar and the German Kaiser.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT AVERTED

The accident in Springfield, Ill., when a train plowed into a bus carrying twenty-nine children and jammed the bus on the cow-catcher in such a way that it was carried five hundred feet along until the train was stopped, thus saving the lives of the children undoubtedly has filled the parents of those children with a great thankfulness. Narrow escapes from death either for ourselves or for our loved ones do have much the same effect as of a resurrection. Gilbert K. Chesterton in a recent little book, in one of the sketches, brought out the fact that he has at times gone away from home, to far places, in order to rediscover his own familiar surroundings. Returning to them after the traveler has journeyed far away he sees how lovely home and the home setting is when he did not see it as he was dull-eyed before his departure.

It is the way with escapes from the clutches of death. Loved beings, whose presence one accepts as a matter of course, when their being has been threatened are not more precious but our own awareness of their dear value to us is emphasized and we consciously or unconsciously take a moment or more time to feel our thankfulness that it was not as it so nearly might have been.

Those parents of the twenty-nine school children in that bus that was carried along by the train must be experiencing just such thanksgiving today.

After Carrots—What?

The American breakfast table is liquefying. For years the proponents of fruit in the morning were well satisfied to spoon their juice from the heavily boiled orange or grapefruit even at the discomfort of an occasional shot in the eye. But of late the economics in time which good sleepers demand of the breakfast period have brought a demand that the juice be extracted and served without necessitating explorations for delicious potion in the sometimes malicious pulp.

The result has been the development of a juice industry which appears to have almost unlimited possibilities. Beginning with the orange and the grapefruit the activities of an apparently resourceful industry have brought forth other and sometimes surprising juices. One may yet face at the breakfast table a catalogue of juices that will represent practically every food product capable of delivering anything that may be labeled "juice."

The orange and the grapefruit held their prestige for only a short time. The old tomato came along and wildly acclaimed itself the peer of any other juice-producing fruit. It soon established itself firmly that a juice triumvirate appeared to be inevitable. But it didn't stop at the tomato. The humble prune—the poor man's strawberry—wrinkled its brow and called vociferously for recognition. In swift succession the pineapple and the cranberry marshaled their forces and urged their superiors as a breakfast table juice.

And then strange things began to happen. Somebody got an idea that cabbage was a "fruit" which never had been properly recognized save in the New England boiled dinner. The result was "sauerkraut juice" with a list of its various benefits. The latest news tells of a corporation for the manufacture of "carrot juice." It is clear that the end is not yet. Perhaps we may soon have our "bacon and egg juice" and take our breakfast standing.

It is not difficult to see, in observing these two schools, the one to which the Federal Judge in Tampa, Florida, belongs. He would have stood with the minority in the Supreme court in the Minnesota case. We do not attempt to say that the same facts apply or that the same conclusion will be reached on this case. For it may evolve upon an entirely different theory.

For in the Minnesota case it was held that the power to do this did lay in the legislature, and in this case it was held that the contract carried with it the infirmity of the subject matter, which was within the province of the legislature. There may be powers that have been granted the President, and through him, to the Secretary of Agriculture, which are not powers granted him within the Constitution, and as was decided in the Minnesota case emergencies do not create powers, though they may bring sleeping powers to action.

KING GEORGE GOES WITH THE TIMES

A remark attributed to King George does him credit, and accounts for his grip upon his subjects. He was asked how the Labor Ministry reacted upon him. His answer was, "My grandmother would have been irritated by it; my father would have tolerated it; I go along with the times."

Fortunate is the ruler who understands his times, who comes out from his seclusion in the throne room and senses the life of his people. The reason why there are so many rulers living in retirement in Europe, and so many who have found untimely graves, is due to their inability to understand their times and their people. King George is not one of them.

The heir to the British throne, the Prince of Wales, has also gotten the cue. He has been a "good fellow" for many years. Recently he has been consorting with coal miners in their homes and in the mines. To the humble folk who all their lives have been singing "God save the King," he is no longer a figure apart to be held in awe. He has become one of them. He looks upon them as fellow countrymen, with him interested in the welfare of all citizens of the empire upon which the sun never sets.

Queen Victoria, according to her latest biographers, was an irritable old lady. Her popularity was largely the popularity engendered by effective publicity, since after the death of the Prince Consort she retired almost completely from the public gaze. Only on state occasions was she to be seen. King Edward was a good diplomat. He knew how to adjust himself to changes without manifesting personal pique or opposition. King George is sensible enough to go with the times approvingly. The Prince of Wales seems to be destined to be the intimate of all his people. So do royal change in four generations. It is either to step down to the people, like King George, or go out like the Russian Czar and the German Kaiser.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT AVERTED

The accident in Springfield, Ill., when a train plowed into a bus carrying twenty-nine children and jammed the bus on the cow-catcher in such a way that it was carried five hundred feet along until the train was stopped, thus saving the lives of the children undoubtedly has filled the parents of those children with a great thankfulness. Narrow escapes from death either for ourselves or for our loved ones do have much the same effect as of a resurrection. Gilbert K. Chesterton in a recent little book, in one of the sketches, brought out the fact that he has at times gone away from home, to far places, in order to rediscover his own familiar surroundings. Returning to them after the traveler has journeyed far away he sees how lovely home and the home setting is when he did not see it as he was dull-eyed before his departure.

It is the way with escapes from the clutches of death. Loved beings, whose presence one accepts as a matter of course, when their being has been threatened are not more precious but our own awareness of their dear value to us is emphasized and we consciously or unconsciously take a moment or more time to feel our thankfulness that it was not as it so nearly might have been.

Those parents of the twenty-nine school children in that bus that was carried along by the train must be experiencing just such thanksgiving today.

After Carrots—What?

The American breakfast table is liquefying. For years the proponents of fruit in the morning were well satisfied to spoon their juice from the belched orange or grapefruit even at the discomfort of an occasional shot in the eye. But of late the economies in time which good sleepers demand of the breakfast period have brought a demand that the juice be extracted and served without necessitating explorations for delicious potion in the sometimes malicious pulp.

The result has been the development of a juice industry which appears to have almost unlimited possibilities. Beginning with the orange and the grapefruit the activities of an apparently resourceful industry have brought forth other and sometimes surprising juices. One may yet face at the breakfast table a catalogue of juices that will represent practically every food product capable of delivering anything that may be labeled "juice."

The orange and the grapefruit held their prestige for only a short time. The old tomato came along and wildly acclaimed itself the peer of any other juice-producing fruit. It soon established itself so firmly that a juice triumvirate appeared to be inevitable. But it didn't stop at the tomato. The humble prune—the poor man's strawberry—wrinkled its brow and called vociferously for recognition. In swift succession the pineapple and the cranberry marshaled their forces and urged their superiors as a breakfast table juice.

And then strange things began to happen. Somebody got an idea that cabbage was a "fruit" which never had been properly recognized save in the New England boiled dinner. The result was "sauerkraut juice" with a list of its various benefits. The latest news tells of a corporation for the manufacture of "carrot juice." It is clear that the end is not yet. Perhaps we may soon have our "bacon and egg juice" and take our breakfast standing.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

ROOSEVELT AND THE COTTON FARMERS

Without raising the question of the ultimate soundness or unsoundness of the whole philosophy of reducing our agricultural output, the cotton policy of the Roosevelt administration presents an interesting story.

1933 saw an emergency cotton reduction program put into effect. Approximately 1,000,000 cotton farmers, accepting the suggestion of the government, took something more than 10,000,000 acres out of cotton production. Before this control plan came into the picture it was estimated that the 1933 cotton crop would run to some 17,000,000 bales. The control plan cut this to about 13,000,000 bales.

The federal government, under this plan, paid about $110,000,000 to the cotton farmers in the form of benefit payments and another potential $50,000,000 in cotton options.

The price of cotton was distinctly improved by this emergency control plan, coupled with the advantage of the shifting exchange value of our dollar. With more cotton consumed at an improved price and with the direct governmental aid in benefit payments and cotton options the income of the cotton farmers was distinctly improved.

In 1932 the income from cotton was about $425,000,000.

In 1933 the income from cotton was about $850,000,000.

"I am in a sad difficulty. My son defied me and flatly disobeyed me. What am I to do?" "What did he do, or not do?" "He asked me if he could go to a dance and I told him No." "And he went?" "Yes. He told me he was going and no matter what I said he stuck to it. He said he had to go because he had promised to be on the committee. I told him he had no business to serve on any committee without my consent first. Anyway he went."

"How old is this boy?" "Seventeen last month." "Don't you think he is a bit too old to be considered disobedient?"

"Fred Feernot. At seventeen? I obeyed my mother until I was married and even afterward. What's a mother for if she is not to be obeyed?"

"When a child reaches the age of seventeen, especially an intelligent boy, he ought to have passed the stage of mothering that obedience of such a kind implies."

"I don't understand you. You mean to say that I've no right to tell my own son what he is to do? Who's to do it, then? You can't let him run wild and his father is much too busy to be bothered with him."

"No, he can't run wild. Do you think that he would if you were not on hand to tell him what he was to do?"

"I'm sorry for it."

"And that after training him to obey me. What am I to do?" "To me that the method didn't work very well. By this time he should be thoroughly trained. Seventeen is a long period of time and children are quick to learn something wrong, isn't there?"

"He says flatfooted that he is not going to be tied to me any longer. Oh, I feel so bad about it. You don't know how I suffer. To think that my baby should turn me on like that. I've hoped so much for him. All my life has been given to him. This is my reward. Mothers have a bitter burden."

"Not always. Babies grow up and their mothers have to grow with them. It is a mistake to think that mothers stop growing

One of the chief business transactions of the year was the purchase by George S. Briggs of a 24-acre walnut grove on East Fourth street, from Mrs. Mary P. Mathews. The consideration was reported as being $7,200. Immediately after concluding the purchase, the new owner sold three acres of the tract to Attorney A. W. Rutan.
